This is also coming from Wayne Ross, evidently. (Per Mr. Knowles.)

Just got off the phone with him. He's ticked.

FYI - phone call I made to him was a courtesy to Wayne Ross - and the phone call didn't go very well.

thanks JB - these folks are something else.
there's a lot of selfishness in the fisheries issues, I find. It's tempting to just fine good, objective, fair Alaskans willing to serve on these boards even if they have NO fish experience - to show the obsessed factions that we're not going to kowtow to any particular faction.

Good Morning Ivy, I need to pick you brain. I work with the "SHARE CAMPAIGN", which is State Employee's campaign. Each year the Governor appoints one of their Commissioners to be State Wide chair and he in turn picks one of his people to be State wide Coordinator or assistant Chair or what ever they want to call them. Who do we need to speak with in order to have Governor Palin to appoint the Chair?
Thank you for any help,

Governor Palin,

The SHARE campaign would like you to designate one of your commissioners as chair of the statewide campaign. Last year's chair was Bill Noll. Anna Bell describes it as a figure head position and mostly teleconferences involved. Whomever you designate I will let AnnaBell know and also contact that commissioner.

Thanks,

Ivy

Thanks for the heads up Governor.

I have spoken with Bruce a number of times, as has John Hilsinger and Kelly Hepler (directors of commercial fisheries and sport fish). While I don't concur with him that we are ignoring the Yentna, I understand his concerns. Our discussions have been vigorous but amiable.

Of course, Bruce's position is exactly opposed to that of Doug Blossom, Dave Martin, and many commercial fishermen in Cook Inlet that you've been hearing from, who believe that we are not doing enough to promote full commercial utilization of Cook Inlet salmon.

These are extremely tough questions, with strong polarized viewpoints out in the public. From the department we can address the science (although not to everyone's satisfaction), but it is the Board of Fisheries who gets to make the difficult public policy choices on what uses (commercial, sport, personal use, etc.) are favored by their specific regulatory management plans.

The emergency meeting of the Board of Fisheries on April 16 regarding the Cook Inlet salmon management plans will be very contentious, with drift gill net, set gill net, Kenai sport, and Susitna sport interests all at odds with one another.

Bruce Knowles from Mat_Su Fish Advisory insists Yetna, Fish Creek escapements are being ignored by F & G.

He wants this addressed. He insists F & G is "all Comm fish". They're very concerned.

He's threatening, or promising: "Emergency petition for escapement goals will be submitted for the April 16 meeting (B of F), in the next couple of days."
